STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Registration of Births and Deaths (Amendment) Bill, 2012 seeks to amend the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969 (18 of 1969) so as to provide for registration of marriages irrespective of religion professed and practised by the parties to the marriage. At present the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969 provides only for the regulation of registration of births and deaths and for matters connected therewith.

2. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Seema Vs. Ashwani Kumar (AIR 2006 SC 1158) in its judgment dated 14-02-2006 has directed the Government that marriages of all persons who are citizens of India belonging to various religious denominations should be made compulsorily registrable in their respective States where such marriages are solemnized and, inter alia, directed that as and when the Central Government enacts a comprehensive statute, the same shall be placed before that Court for scrutiny.

3. The Committee on Empowerment of Women (2006-2007) in its Twelfth Report (Fourteenth Lok Sabha) on Plight of Indian Women Deserted by Non-Resident Indian (NRI) Husbands presented to Lok Sabha on the 13th August, 2007, has, inter alia, expressed the view that all marriages, irrespective of religion should be compulsorily registered and desired that the Government to make registration of all marriages mandatory, making the procedure simpler, affordable and accessible.

4. The 18th Law Commission of India in its 205th Report titled “Proposal to Amend the Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006 and other Allied Laws”, inter alia, recommended that “registration of marriages within a stipulated period, of all the communities, viz. Hindu, Muslim, Christian, etc., should be made mandatory by the Government”. Further, the 18th Law Commission in its 211th Report titled “Laws on Registration of Marriage and Divorce—A proposal for Consolidation and Reform”, has recommended for Parliamentary legislation on compulsory registration of marriages which will bring country-wide uniformity in the substantive law relating to registration and will be helpful in effectively achieving the desired goal.

5. The Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969, inter alia, provides for Registration establishments consisting of Registrar-General, Chief Registrar and registration division, District Registrars and Registrars. It also provides procedures for registration of births and deaths and for maintenance of records and statistics. Further, by virtue of the powers conferred under section 30 of the aforesaid Act, rules for compulsory registration of births and deaths have been framed by the respective State Governments and Union territory Administrations. Therefore, it is proposed to amend the aforesaid Act suitably to include registration of marriages as well within its scope so that the existing administrative machinery would also be able to carry out registration of marriages in accordance with the specified procedures and be able to maintain necessary records and statistics for registration of marriages also.

6. Having regard to the aforesaid directions of the Supreme Court, report of the Committee on Empowerment of Women and recommendations of the Law Commission referred to in the foregoing paragraphs, it is proposed to amend the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969 to provide for compulsory registration of marriages without affecting in any manner the State law making provisions for compulsory registration of marriages in their respective States. For this purpose, suitable provisions are incorporated in the Bill to avoid any duplication of registration of marriages under the proposed Central law and the State law. It is also proposed to provide in the Bill that the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969 (after the enactment of proposed amendments) shall not apply to any person who has registered his marriage under any other law for the time being in force including a State Act providing for registration of marriages or with any other authority under that law and nothing contained in this Act shall affect the validity of the marriages registered under that law. Further, the parties to the marriage, whose marriage has been registered under this Act shall not be required to get their marriage registered under the Anand Marriage Act, 1909 or any other law for the time being in force. Moreover, the registration of marriages thereunder shall not affect any right recognised or acquired by any party to marriage under any law, custom or usage.

7. The proposed Bill will provide for registration of marriages of all persons who are citizens of India belonging to various religious denominations and be beneficial to women, as the registration certificate would provide evidentiary value in matrimonial and maintenance cases and prevent unnecessary harassment meted out to them. It will also provide evidentiary value in the matters of age of parties, custody of children and the right of children born out of such marriages.

8. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objects.

SALMAN KHURSHID.

II

BILL NO. XXIII OF 2012

A Bill further to amend the Anand Marriage Act, 1909.

7 of 1909.

Insertion of new section 6.

3. After section 5 of the principal Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

of marriages.

“6. (1) For the purposes of facilitation of proof of marriage ceremony (commonly known as Anand Karaj) customary among the, Sikhs the State Government shall, without prejudice to anything contained in the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 or any other law for the time being in force, make rules providing that the parties to any such marriage [whether solemnized before or after the commencement of the Anand Marriage

25 of 1955.

(Amendment) Act, 2012], may have the particulars relating to their marriage entered, in such manner and subject to such conditions as may be provided in the said rules, in a Marriage Register kept by such officer of the State Government or of a local authority authorised by the State Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, in this behalf.

(2) The Marriage Register shall, at all reasonable times, be open for inspection, and shall be admissible as evidence of the statements contained therein and certified extracts therefrom shall, on an application, be given by the Registrar to the parties to the marriage on payment of such fees as may be provided in the rules.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section, the validity of any Anand Marriage solemnized shall in no way be affected by the omission to make an entry in the Marriage Register.

(4) Every rule made by the State Government under this section shall be laid before the State Legislature, as soon as may be, after they are made.

(5) The parties to the marriage, whose marriage has been registered under this Act, shall not be required to get their marriage registered under the Registration of Births, Marriages and Deaths Act, 1969 or any other law for the time being in force (including State Act.)".

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Anand Marriage Act, 1909 (7 of 1909) was enacted with the object to remove doubts as to the validity of the marriage ceremony common among the Sikhs called 'Anand'. This form of marriage is also known as 'Anand Karaj' and has long been practised among the Sikhs. As there were good reasons to believe that doubts may be thrown upon such marriages and Sikhs may have to face great difficulties and incur heavy expenses on suits instituted in the civil courts, the said enactment was passed in order to validate such marriages.

2. The Department Related Parliamentary Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law and Justice has proposed insertion of a clause in the Anand Marriage Act, 1909 to provide for registration of Sikh marriages in the year 2007. The Committee further informed that there was consensus on the said proposal of the Committee and requested the Legislative Department to take necessary steps in amending the Anand Marriage Act, 1909 providing for registration of marriages solemnized under the Act.

3. Further several representations have also been received seeking amendments in the Anand Marriage Act, 1909 to provide for compulsory registration of 'Anand Karaj' marriages.

4. In view of the recommendations of the Standing Committee and several representations received in this regard, it is proposed to provide for registration of 'Anand Karaj' marriages solemnized by Sikhs amending the Anand Marriage Act, 1909 to ensure evidentiary value thereof. Therefore, it is considered necessary to amend the Anand Marriage Act, 1909 to provide for registration of marriages.

5. It is proposed to provide in the Bill that the parties to the marriage whose marriage has been registered under this Act shall not be required to get their marriage registered under the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969 (after the enactment of proposed amendments) or any other law for the time being in force.

6. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objects.
